FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Caltrans Announces Newly-named Robin Williams Tunnel U.S. Highway 101 at Golden Gate Bridge

SAN FRANCISCO & MARIN COUNTY – The California Department of Transportation (Caltrans) is proud to announce the newly-named “Robin Williams Tunnel”, effective March 1, 2016.

The Williams Tunnel, formerly known as the Waldo Tunnel, is located just north of the Golden Gate Bridge, connecting San Francisco and Marin County on U.S. Highway 101. Caltrans posted the signs designating the Williams Tunnel this week at the northbound and southbound tunnel entrances. Approximately 100,000 motorists use the tunnel daily.

Private donations paid for the signs. The California Legislature passed Assembly Concurrent Resolution (ACR) No. 1 in July 2015, designating the naming of the Robin Williams Tunnel.
